Municipal Conference Announces
Intergovernmental Cooperation Award Recipients

The DuPage Mayors and Managers Conference honored Former Carol Stream Mayor Ross Ferraro and Woodridge Village Administrator John Perry as recipients of the Conference's 2006-2007 Intergovernmental Cooperation Awards. The Award is given annually by the Conference to honor leaders who exemplify intergovernmental values as demonstrated through action and commitment. The award winners were selected by the Conference Board of Directors.

Ross Ferraro was honored for his 20 years of service as Mayor of Carol Stream. He has been an active member of the Conference, including serving as Conference President during term year 1995-1996. Conference President and Naperville Mayor George Pradel said, "Ross has been a continuous advocate for all DuPage and Illinois municipalities, serving on numerous regional and national committees. We are grateful for all that he has done for the community."

Village Administrator John Perry was recognized for his tireless work on the DuPage Water Commission and the Emergency Telephone System Board. The Conference Board of Directors, in nominating him for the award, agreed that John worked diligently to keep municipal members informed on pertinent issues. "We are pleased to have this opportunity to honor John's leadership and commitment to important issues that affect us all," Pradel said.
